Oscar is a student from Germany who lives with his mother, who works in the insurance industry, his father, a sales manager, and his two siblings - an older brother and a younger sister. He describes his family life as typical, with everyone engaged in their own hobbies and extracurricular activities after school.

Despite their busy schedules, the family always has dinner together, as lunch is rarely possible. Since he was a baby, Oscar's family has gone to the same place every year for skiing and hiking vacations, making it a cherished family tradition. They also gather with their extended family to celebrate religious holidays like Christmas and Easter, which are important events for them.

Oscar describes himself as a calm and observant person who likes to get to know people before interacting. Once he feels comfortable, he is very open and adaptable. He enjoys helping others and often prioritizes their needs over his own. An active individual, Oscar loves sports and trying new activities, but he also appreciates relaxing weekends on the couch. Being outdoors is particularly important to him, and he looks forward to exploring new sports during his exchange.

Oscar's friends describe him as open, fun, and reliable—someone who is always ready to lend a helping hand or be a good listener. Through this exchange experience, Oscar hopes to build his confidence, become more comfortable approaching strangers, and create unforgettable memories. He is excited to gain new perspectives on society and the world, which he believes will help him become more understanding and tolerant.
